Injury queue grows

GOALKEEPER John Maskell, who missed Saturday's 2-1 win over Enfield, could be out of the game for a couple of weeks, as it is feared he has tonsillitis. John saw a doctor yesterday (Monday) and will be out of the side tonight (Tuesday) for the visit to St. Albans.

Also missing will be Tony Horseman, who injured a leg before being substituted on Saturday. These two join Ian Rundle and Derek Gamblin on the injury list. The news of Ian, who is in hospital with meningitis, is encouraging. Apparently he was up on Saturday and is now allowed visitors.

As Wycombe have yet to receive the registration of Terry Reardon, signed this week from neighbours Slough Town, the Rebels skipper will not be able to turn out tonight. However, he is likely to be in the Blues side which meets Hungerford Town, the Hellenic League side, for a friendly at Loakes Park on Thursday. So too will be a new goalkeeper, a youngster from Wallingford, Barry Griffiths. Barry, who plays for Wallingford Town in the Hellenic League, has been with Southampton this season.

The Hungerford game on Thursday will be the last opportunity for season-ticket holders in C block to claim their tickets for the F.A. Cup tie against Newport on November 24. After that, they will be sold. Treasurer Roger Lee reports a virtual "sell out" with most tickets gone before Saturday's match. There are still some ground and enclosure tickets left, however.

St. Albans, smarting from that 7-0 defeat at Loakes Park last Tuesday, lost 3-4 to Tooting on Saturday and are still troubled with injuries. Kendall, Murphy, White and Hogwood are all doubtful for tonight's match.
